Here are preliminary studies on the OCI history project, which probably ought to be fleshed out still further by you and your staff and by knowledgeable persons in various divisions and special outfits - particularly the Soviet people, and Military Division.

The first study is functionally arranged - i.e. by subjects, tentatively grouped according to the manner in which they might eventually be written up. Subjects can be treated individually or in groups as desired. For example, the history of White House briefings could be written up as an individual paper, or alternatively as a paragraph or two in a larger chapter on OCI Briefings, or in both forms. I am sure that other people will think of interesting subjects which could be added to my list and feel that their contributions should be received before any final decision is made on what will be written, by whom, and in what order of priority.

The second study is chronologically arranged. When completely fleshed out, it should contain semewhere in it all the subjects or items mentioned in the functional study. One purpose of this study is to discover when certain things were first undertaken and when they were dropped; the reasons therefor can then be determined by a study of events in other agencies of the government or in the outside world. Another purpose is to show bulges of activity, when OCI was undertaking very heavy commitments, with or without additional personnel. For instance, you will note on the chart that 1954,1962, and 1964 seem to have been years of much greater activity than some others. This may or may not be valid, but it should point research in certain directions. This study should also show that certain projects were successful - i.e. calls for similar projects were repeated in ever-increasing frequency, or continued regularly throughout the years from the date they were first instituted.

I suggest that you circulate these studies, let me collate additional suggestions that you receive, and only then make final decisions on who should write what, in what order, at what time.

I await your pleasure.

DD/I Historical Board

The Office of Research and Reports, 1953-1965

A survey of the major developments in the mission, organization, and research activities of ORR. Will summarize briefly the early history of the Office but will emphasize developments during the twelve year administration of the proposed author, Otto E. Guthe, 1953-1965. Will place in historical perspective major programs of the Office such as the production of geographic, basic, and photographic intelligence which have developed into independent activities, but will leave detailed treatment of these activities to the histories of these organizations. Major attention will be given to the contribution of the Office to economic and military-economic intelligence production in the light of changing community requirements for policy support. Will also comment on the problems of planning, directing, reviewing, and coordinating finished intelligence production.

a. Prospectus

- 1) Brief historical introduction
- 2) Mission
- 3) Organization
- 4) Personnel
- 5) Activities which have matured into independent offices -- OBI and NPIC
- 6) Major contributions to intelligence community
- 7) Adaptation to community requirements for finished intelligence
- 8) 1965 in contrast to 1953
- 9) Problems in the planning, directing, reviewing, and coordinating the production of finished intelligence production
- b. Author:

Otto E. Guthe Six months, January - June 1967

c. Review:

The Development of Economic Intelligence, 1948-1966

Will survey the development of economic intelligence from the organization of the Agency to the present, with emphasis on the changes in objectives, sources, methods, intensity, areas, aggregation, consumers, and other pertinent characteristics. It is planned to highlight particularly the sharp increase in policy support and methods devised to produce studies which further this objective. Would emphasize method and substance rather than formal organization.

a. Prospectus

- 1) Early concepts -- inventories of ignorance
- 2) Industry research
- 3) Economic aggregation
- 4) Growing provision of policy support
- 5) Changing customer requirements
- 6) Trends in production
- 7) Sources and methods
- 8) Personnel, recruitment and hiring
- 9) The planning, direction, control, and review of economic intelligence production
- 10) Current problems and policies

ORR Research in Support of Economic Defense, 1949-1966

A history of the efforts of ORR to provide intelligence support to the trade controls program. Will indicate the kinds of support provided, the changing nature of the support required, the impact of the support on the program, and the recent requirements for intelligence assistance in analyzing the effectiveness of the program itself, such as support to the President's Special Committee on US Trade Relations with East European Countries and the Soviet Union (Miller Committee).

a. Prospectus

- 1) Relationship of ORR research effort to the COCOM and US economic defense program
- 2) Organization
- 3) Personnel
- 4) Trends in kind of support required and provided -- e.g., fact sheets, list reviews, examples of major cases, and changes in scope and controls
  - Impact of the support program in the implementation of US policy

6) Problems in fulfilling support role

- 7) Evaluation of the support program
- 8) Supporting policy makers in evaluation of the controls programs -- e.g., Miller Committee, Eugene Rostow, Rusk (effectiveness of US and Western controls to counter possible Berlin blockade).

HISTORY OF THE COLLECTION GUIDANCE STAFF

AN OUTLINE

I. Introduction

- A. CGS a late comer on the scene---less than three and one half years old.
- B. Resulted largely from collection problems which developed during the 50's.
  - l. Proliferation of components levying requirements---costly, unable to coordinate effectively;
  - 2. Inability to make best possible use of collection resources;
    - 3. No effective means of collecting on a priority basis;
    - 4. Duplicative collection requirements and reporting;
  - 5. No effective means of evaluating reporting or collection systems.
  - C. Series of studies after 1960 to determine what should be done.
    - 1. Joint Study Group Report of 1960;
    - 2. A study of the CIA Requirements System, 1962;
    - 3. A Proposed CIA Requirement Registry, 1962;
    - 4. Others.
- D. By 1962 it was generally felt that central management of some sort was needed but a wide range of opinion existed as to what should be done.
  - 1. Description of views then extant.

OBI Histories: Suggested Topics and Authors

- 1. The following topics are suggested for treatment in the OBI Mistory program. They are listed in the order of our preference, on the assumption that no more than one study will be undertaken at a time.
  - a. Relationships of NIS Program with USIB and non-USIB Agencies.
- (1) The role of the IAC (later USIB) Agencies as a nior cosponsors and principal consumers of the NIS Program. Their departmental contributions in intelligence production, evaluation, and other services; their performance over the past and trends in NIS participation. Principal NIS problems among the major agencies and lessons learned therefrom.
- (2) The role of the non-IAC (non-USIB) members of the Intelligence Community re the NIS Program. Generation and development of departmental capabilities to meet NIS requirements. Coordination with other intelligence elements by CIA or thru other IAC/USIB members; resulting effectiveness of product; its use for non-IAC/USIB departmental purposes. Appraisal of past problems and indications for the future.

|       | I went to a meeting of the DDI Historical Roard this afternoon and came             |  |  |  |
|       | away with the following possibly useful thoughts:                                   |  |  |  |
| 25X1/ | 1) seemed to want rather badly a chronological outline of each                      |  |  |  |
|       | office's history fairly early on in the game to enable him and his board to do      |  |  |  |
|       | some coordinative thinking. The outline need not be extremely exhaustive and        |  |  |  |
|       | should be considered more as a preliminary effort than a final production. There    |  |  |  |
|       | will almost certainly be continuing pressure for OCI to produce one.                |  |  |  |
| 25X1A | 2) Both wanted identification of authors for specific                               |  |  |  |
|       | projects as soon as possible.                                                       |  |  |  |
| 25X1A | 3) raised a question as to why OCI had not submitted some sort of                   |  |  |  |
|       | organizational history project - specifically the development of the OCI analyst    |  |  |  |
|       | over the years, noting changes in his capabilities and duties. I indicated that     |  |  |  |
|       | OCI preferred to start with a more broad-brush treatment which would indirectly     |  |  |  |
|       | reflect (through publications) all the things the OCI analyst was capable of        |  |  |  |
| 25X1A | producing.                                                                          |  |  |  |
|       | 4) also raised the question of OCI/ONE relations as a possible                      |  |  |  |
|       | subject for treatment. I stated my thought that OCI's function of supplying         |  |  |  |
| 4     | current intelligence to assist ONE's deliberations and our review of NIE's          |  |  |  |
|       | was too narrow a subject for first priority consideration.                          |  |  |  |
|       | 5) There seemed to be general agreement that all offices would get to work          |  |  |  |
|       | as soon as possible.                                                                |  |  |  |
| 25X1  | 6) want to be notified before any office recalls                                    |  |  |  |
|       | retirees or extends the term of potential retirees for work on historical projects. |  |  |  |

| 25X1A | 2. The Chairman called the meeting to order at 1400. He noted the official establishment of the DDI Historical Board and Historical Officer in the DDI Notice of 8 November 1966. He then discussed in general terms the concept and status of the DDI historical program, stressing the purpose to be served by the writing of histories and reviewing the various types of historical papers to be produced. said that he appreciated the difficulty in finding the right people to prepare historical papers, but indicated that there were many alternatives and that each office should explore these with care and present its recommendations.                 |  |
| 25X1A | said he was very pleased with the initial programs as submitted by the DDI offices, noting that all had now been received in some form, but he felt that, in some cases, the programs would have to be further developed in order to permit useful evaluation. He placed particular emphasis upon the need for interpretation in historical writing – the "why" and the "how" as well as the "what" of important developments. He also pointed out that the programs as submitted would undoubtedly need modification as the actual writing progressed; he felt it was essential, therefore, that initial programs be approved and writing begin as soon as possible. |  |
| ,     | 4. With reference to the preparation of over-all narrative histories, there was extended discussion. Although he thought considerable flexibility should be allowed, the Chairman felt that the preparation of a chronology of important events in each office should be undertaken at an early date, but that the narratives based thereon might be deferred until the more important monographs had been outlined in some detail. The chronology and the narrative might well be modified as work on the monographs progressed and additional topics might be identified for                                                                                        |  | separate treatment. A cutoff date of 31 December 1966 was agreed upon for the narrative histories. Each monograph would, of course, have its own initial and terminal dates depending upon the subject being treated.

- 5. The Chairman introduced a subject for consideration by the Historical Board at a future date, namely, the need for developing an awareness of the importance of "preserving the record" in order to facilitate the work of future historical writers. It was not apparent, he said, that any conscious of systematic effort was now being made to prevent the destruction of selected documents of historical value.
- 6. The Executive Secretary briefly reviewed the historical programs in the DDS and DDS&T. He then discussed the recruitment of officers for the writing of papers. Every effort should be made to have on-duty personnel write the short papers, such as monographs or special historical studies, and, where possible, narrative histories, although this is admittedly difficult. Once again it was pointed out that each office should try to identify prospective retirees, relieve them of other duties, and put them to writing histories during the last three to six months of their Agency employment. In some cases, it may be necessary to bring back annuitants and it was noted that one office expected to use three or four annuitants under contract. The Executive Secretary said he was not sure that the Executive Director would approve this, but that he would check it. He also reminded those present that the Chairman would have to be advised in advance of any proposed contracts so that these could be cleared with the Office of the DDI and the Executive Director
- 7. The Chairman and Executive Secretary then briefly discussed the historical programs as submitted by the various offices. It was noted that in several cases, they had omitted any mention of an over-all narrative chronological history. The Chairman asked that they submit outlines of such histories as soon as possible, even if it were their intention to write monographs first. He again asked that those offices which had not done so furnish him with the names of prospective historical writers and some rough estimate as to the dates when the histories would be finished, or a first draft completed. He also requested that specific reviewing officers be named for each paper as early as possible. It is proposed to submit to the DDI a tentative program for the several offices as soon as the essential data have been received.

| 1.    | 8. There was then a general discussion concerning various problems inherent in the program. The question of format and content was raised and                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |  |  |  |

| 25X1A | said he was in the process of drafting a handbook which would act as a guide. This would be similar to the handbook recently produced by the Clandestine Services.                                                                                                                                                                                                       |  |  |  |
| 25X1A | asked that, in the case of offices that expected to use annuitants under contract, they furnish the Chairman with a memorandum stating what annuitants they wanted to put under contract and for what purpose This should be done as soon as possible so that their requests can be cleared with the Office of the DDI and the Executive Director and contracts written. |  |  |  |
|       | 10. The Chairman adjourned the meeting at 1520.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |  |  |  |

You said you wanted to see a copy of the minutes of the second meeting of the DDI Historical Board, attached hereto.

With regard to paragraph 7, where most of the problems seem to lie, I think

(a) that with a little more digging and filling in, the chronological outline I have already prepared can be made to satisfy the requirement for a chronological history of events,

- (b) that the name or names of prospective author(s) should be officially submitted for his report to the DDI,
- (c) that individual papers should not take more than three months to complete in first draft; I base this on the assumption that the research and writing required would not exceed those of an NIS chapter of about 100 pages which we normally complete in three months,
- (d) that three or four of OCI's suggested historical topics could tentatively be promised within a year, and
- (e) that the names of D/OCI and Area Chiefs be submitted as reviewing X1 officers, whose duty it will be to approve OCI manuscripts.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Intelligence

ATTENTION

DDI Historical Board

Chairman

Use of CIA Annuitants as Independent Contractors (Historical Writers)

- l. In general the historical writing program will be carried out most effectively by using individuals who can give full-time attention to the preparation of an historical paper. The "part-time" services that a staff officer can spare from his regular assignment may, in some cases, preclude a thorough job of researching, interviewing and writing. Short monographs or other historical studies can be prepared by on-duty personnel if they are not pressed for time, but it may be impractical to ask staff officers to write lengthy narrative histories of major components in addition to their other duties. In many cases, therefore, it will be necessary to engage uniquely qualified Agency annuitants as Independent Contractors to prepare the required historical studies.
- 2. A headquarters notice will soon be published setting forth the Agency's policy on the contractual rehire of retired civilian Government employees. The notice will also contain general ground rules and procedures to be followed when such retired annuitants are rehired by contract.
- 3. There are set forth below a few guidelines which may assist you in the selection, hire and use of retired Agency annuitants as Independent Contractors to prepare required historical papers.
  - a. After the experience and qualifications of a prospective contractor have been reviewed and found to be acceptable by the component concerned, a memorandum of intent will be submitted to the Office of Security requesting approval to contact the individual for pre-contractual discussions.

- b. In all cases the Chairman of the Board will be advised in advance of the intention of any component to place an annuitant under contract. There may be exploratory discussions with the proposed contractor, but no commitments will be made until the Chairman has received approval from his Deputy Director and from the Executive Director-Comptroller.
- c. The nature, extent and complexity of the proposed historical study(ies) are among the items to be considered in proposing a contractual fee. If an individual is engaged to write one study, he will be paid a fee for that study; if engaged to prepare several studies, he may be compensated on a retainer fee basis. It is felt that normally an historical writer engaged as an Independent Contractor should not be paid a fee in excess of per year. In no event will the individual's Tee plus his annuity exceed the current salary of his grade and step held at time of retirement. The Executive Secretary of the Board and the component concerned will jointly discuss the terms of the proposed contract with representatives of the Contract Personnel Division, Office of Personnel.

- d. It will be the responsibility of the using component to obtain an appropriate security approval for the individual's contract use.
- e. Contracts will be prepared by the Contract Personnel Division, Office of Personnel. Most will be written for a period of 2 to 6 months, depending upon the time estimated to complete the study. Contracts with retired annuitants paid on a retainer fee basis will normally be written for a period of one year. Renewal of a contract may be requested when warranted. All contracts will contain a clause providing that the Government may terminate the agreement for any reason upon a specified number of days' notice.

- g. A work plan should be arranged with the individual in which measurable progress points are established.
- h. The sensitivity of the subject, classification and amount of documents required as well as the classification of the ultimate historical paper may make it mandatory that all work be performed within the secure confines of an Agency installation. If such is the case, the contract should so state.
- i. Limited expenses to include travel and per diem may be permitted in the contract for essential research interviewing. In each instance such expenses should be specifically approved in advance by an authorized Agency representative.

13 Gctober 1969 25X1A MEMORANDUM FOR: OCI Historical Officer SUBJECT : Publication of OCI Historical Monograph 1. The DDI Historical Board has reviewed the manuscript of 25X1A 25X1A monograph on the "Briefing of the President-elect" and recommends that it be published in the regular series. We found it to be a very worthwhile and interesting contribution to the historical program. It is in the nature of an historical note or a memorandum for the record, but it is the kind of information that we are anxious to have preserved. Although not all such historical fragments will be of the same order of importance or interest, I think it very desirable that they be committed to paper while the events are still fresh in the minds of the participants. I understand that Messrs. 25X1A have read the manuscript and also find it acceptable for publication in the regular series. 2. Eccause of the special classification of this document, I suggest that the same arrangements apply as in the case of 25X1A 25X1A paper (OCI/1). can provide the covers but the actual binding and final issuance can be handled with OCI facilities. 25X1A advises me that the Historical Staff will not request a copy. Only two official copies need be prepared - one for OCI and one for the DDI Historical File. OCI should assign the controls that it wishes to be applied to access to the document. 3. This paper will be designated OCI-2 and will be controlled by CCI. The original with signature on the inside title page will be filed in OCI; a xerox copy of this signed page may be used for the second copy to be forwarded to the DDI Historical Board. The inside title page should conform generally to the sample enclosed. Enclosure 25X1A Copies: DDI Histoxical Officer 25X1A Chairman, Dol Historical Board
